Buy a domain name that is already registered

You have chosen to acquire a domain name for your digital identity. Before paying, establish who can transfer it, what the purchase includes and what will prove that your business has received it.

Agreement, payment and handover must align

An accepted price is not enough. Define the expected outcome and the evidence that will establish it.

WHAT TO CLARIFY BEFORE PAYING

01 Who can transfer it?

Exact domain, holder's identity and authority of the seller or intermediary.

02 What are you buying?

Domain, included and excluded assets, rights, fees and written handover conditions.

03 When are funds released?

Stages, checks, any escrow service's role and the response to an obstacle.

04 What has been received?

Holder, contacts, management, recovery and follow-up confirmed for your business.

POINT TO WATCH

Holder change, transfer to another registrar and activation are separate operations. Procedures depend on the extension and participants.

YOUR FIRST ACTION

Agree the evidence of receipt.

Before any payment, ask which confirmations will establish the agreed outcome, who will check them and what happens if a condition is not met.
